

guy's to do here in the Golden Isles, golf being perhaps the most popular among groomsmen.

There are some 198 holes of golf, according to Tipton, running the gamut from the private and exclusive courses of the Sea Island resort to the well-maintained and accessible public courses of Jekyll Island state park.

"Golf is a good activity for the groomsmen," Mrs. Blahnik says. "I had a wedding party that came down from Athens. I arranged a tee time for the groomsmen. I had it all set up for them. While the bridesmaids were at the salon getting made up, the groomsmen were on the golf course all day long."

Golf is only the most obvious choice. The Golden Isles is literally a sportsman's paradise, with opportunities for hunting in the proper season, year-round fishing – offshore and inshore saltwater, plus freshwater – and even beach-combing on the miles and miles of beaches of St. Simons, Jekyll and Cumberland islands.

Boating opportunities also abound, from a quick speed boat ride off the beach to a longer sailing trip or even a gambling excursion on the Emerald Princess II.

"You can charter a boat and go on a sunset tour, or have an oyster roast on the beach," Mrs. Blahnik suggests, "or I could even arrange to get them on a working shrimpboat."

There's always plenty for groomsmen to do in the Golden Isles, and there's no reason for anyone ever to be bored – no matter how long the bridesmaids spend at the spa. ■

We are the College of Coastal Georgia

(L to R) Ashley Sumner '12; Laura McKinley, Trustee and proud mother of Madeline Jackson '12; Mike Hodges '73; Devonne Allen '09; Mel Baxter, Trustee; Nikki Schmauch '03; Reid Workman '12; Ashton Stripling '09; Casey Knight, CGCC; Matthew Hodges '10; Jessica Ramirez '09; Aaron Dunham, African American Male Initiative Mentor; Zoe Horton, Trustee and former instructor at Brunswick College.

Look around.

So many successful community leaders began their education at Brunswick College or Coastal Georgia Community College, the forerunners of the College of Coastal Georgia. Mike Hodges '73 is now the President of Ameris Bank. Nikki Schmauch '03, now supervises the Tutoring Lab at the College of Coastal Georgia. Devonne Allen is on track to receive her degree in Computer Information Technology in 2009. You, too, can energize your future with an Associate Degree – or starting next fall, pursue one of four Bachelor's degrees in business administration, elementary or middle grades education, or nursing.

Your Future.
Our Community.

www.ccg.edu