Altman

Julie Custer Altman grew up in southwest Georgia amid farmlands, tall tales and pecan groves. After graduating from Agnes Scott College and backpacking through Europe, her wanderlust took her to Colombia, Mexico, and finally to that mecca for youth – Atlanta.

Having fulfilled her need for competitive racing on I-285 and Spaghetti Junction, she was drawn to Coastal Georgia and the Golden Isles. Here, she met her husband, local boy Stuart Altman. They live in the Golden Isles with their two children, two cats, an African water frog and a bearded dragon lizard.

Anderson

Flo Anderson took her first restaurant job at the King and Prince Hotel in 1971. She's been cooking ever since. Her venues have included the Holiday Inn on Jekyll Island, The Flight Plan Café at the McKinnon-St. Simons Airport, and the Emmeline and Hessie. Her final restaurant, The 4th of May Café, endures in the Village. Flo is mother to three and grandmother to seven, all of whom live on St. Simons Island.

Brinson

Thomas D. Brinson, PGA, is the head golf professional at Brunswick Country Club. He brings more than 12 years of experience to the Golden Isles from some of the South's top clubs, including Charlotte Country Club, Atlanta Athletic Club and Atlanta National Golf Club.

A graduate of Florida State University, he is only the 26th PGA Professional to obtain all six certifications from the PGA's Certified Professional Program. Thomas resides on St. Simons Island with his wife, Alexandra, and their retriever, Bogy.

Green

Rachel Green lives in a small town on the outskirts of the Golden Isles. When Rachel is not watching her boys play football, baseball or golf, she enjoys expressing her creativity through writing and her favorite hobby, photography. Rachel enjoys taking pictures because she says it allows her to be part of people's lives when they are happy.

Lacey

J.M. Lacey is a professional freelance writer and writes fiction, non-fiction and poetry. She has worked as a journalist and reporter for a weekly newspaper. She has written feature articles that focused on human interest, social and educational developments.

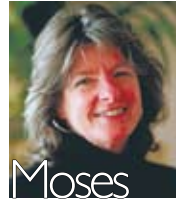

She has over 14 years of experience working in business and has a background in marketing and public relations. J.M. Lacey resides in Brunswick and is currently working on a novel.

Morrison

Mike Morrison has been a reporter and freelance writer in and around the Golden Isles for 25 years. Over the years his pieces have appeared in The Brunswick News, The Georgia Times-Union, The Islander, and Golden Isles Magazine. A winner of more than 65 writing awards from state journalism organizations, he spends his free time contemplating re-hiking the Appalachian Trail or taking another extended backpacking trip around Europe.

Moses

Mary Helen Moses, a native of Atlanta, returned to Georgia 10 years ago after a legal career, as a law professor and practicing lawyer, that took her to North Carolina, Washington, D.C., and Albany, New York. Mary Helen now has a solo practice in Redfern Village on St. Simons Island.

She lives on Sea Island with her son, Andrew Ruberti, a student at the University of Alabama.

Roberts

Brooke Roberts Brooke grew up in northeast Tennessee. She caught the travel bug after graduating high school and was selected to travel with the international exchange program "Up With People" before moving overseas to study Art and Design at the University of Wolverhampton in England and the Technikon of Natal in South Africa. She met husband Paul in England and they moved to the United States in 2002. They settled in the Golden Isles in 2005. Brooke Roberts Photography was opened two years ago and moved to a new studio two months ago. Brooke and Paul have been married 10 years and are expecting their first child at the end of March.

Wicker

Cameron Wicker

Cameron is a native of North Carolina, but has lived all over the South. Prior to relocating to Georgia, she spent 10 years in Seattle working in advertising and exploring the Pacific Northwest. Cameron is the vice president of marketing at Island Design & Architectural Center and is a volunteer board member for the Humane Society of South Coastal Georgia. In her spare time, she travels and studies feng shui with a Chinese master.

Williams

Kathi Williams is currently the Assistant Editor of Coastal Illustrated. She moved to Coastal Georgia in 2006 by way of New Jersey, Illinois, Michigan and Massachusetts and immediately fell in love with the beauty and special community of St. Simons Island. Kathi is pleased to call the island her home now, and you can often find roaming the Village with pen and camera in hand and son, Declan, in tow.

Worth

Dooley Worth Named after a family of Irish acrobats and a Norman family that accompanied William into England, Dooley Worth's education began in the forests of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan where her father – woodsman and writer – guided her through Longfellow and Homer before sending her to study philosophy at the University of Vienna. Further travels, here and abroad, have inspired her to write about everything from 18th Century jewelry to garden hydraulics.
